

New $50.00 Suits, $27.50.

$22.50 for Late $25.00 and $27.50 Suits.

It's an old story—how credit tempts one beyond one's means, and how disaster inevitably follows. In this instance it was a small storekeeper of New York, with the ambition to be known as a vender of fine garments. Possessed of good taste, which his suits mirrored, he was successful until the day of reckoning. Credit was his undoing—and doubtless his present financial failure will prove a stepping-stone to future and permanent success. Your financial interest in this story is that his $50 Suits are to be yours tomorrow at $27.50. Remember that $50 was the credit store view of value—and let us ask you not to expect better than $40 Palais Royal Suits for $27.50. The regular stock of $25 and $27.50 Suits are reduced to $22.50—so that they will not seem so dear in comparison.

Imported Suits Copied.

The cost of the maker's name, added to the custom house tariff, makes imported suits prohibitively dear. Facsimiles can be reproduced in this country, so that $50 suffices for a garment that would cost $75 to import. Such are the suits you will find here tomorrow at only $27.50. Materials are the new Satin Soie, Bengaline Cloth, Prunella and Finest French Serge. Colors include old rose, ash of rose, taupe, gray, tan, reseda, navy, electric, sapphire and black. Trimmings, bengaline pipings and soutache braids, elaborately worked. The tout ensemble is the inexpressible superiority, as of the aristocrat, as compared to the plebeian. It will be a source of great pride and pleasure to fit any of these garments—and prove mutually profitable.

Wool and Linen Models.

The Cloth Suits at $22.50 include Paris and London straight-front and 3-button cutaway effects, with 36 and 40 inch coats; the skirts are both high-girdle and fitted-waist effects. Both strictly tailored and trimmed models are here. The Linen Dresses and Three-piece Suits are plain and trimmed. Some have entire bodice and sleeves of net, heavily braided. The black buttons and sash give a rich finish. $22.50 is to suffice for best of newest $25.00 to $27.50 garments. In conjunction with the $50 Suits at $27.50 we believe that you are learning not only of the best bargains offered so far this season, but of bargains that will not be paralleled again, neither here nor elsewhere. Investigation is asked.

The Hat for You and Your Costume.

Monday is always the best day to visit the Millinery Parlors. Our artists benefit by the Sunday rest, and are not hurried or worried by the everlasting procrastinators, who need a Hat for Sunday and put off a visit until late in the week. So come tomorrow and enjoy a visit to the "French Room." Would you have a duplicate or a variation of either of the hats pictured above? Or perhaps you have a certain hat in mind. A word picture is quite enough for any one of the experts here. In either instance, come tomorrow—if only to profit by the special sale prices, which are as follows:

$1.25 tomorrow for $1.50 bunches of Small Roses, Lilacs, French Forget-me-nots, Snowballs, Hydrangeas, in all the new shades of wistaria, violet, pink, brown, champagne, Alice blue, old rose, yellow and white.

$1.98 tomorrow for $2.50 Milan Braid Hats, in the new mushroom shape, in navy, old rose, brown, black, Alice blue and burnt.

10 per cent discount tomorrow on all Ostrich Plumes at $5.00 to $30.00 and all Birds of Paradise and Aligrettes at $1.75 to $30.00. Note that wholesale quantities are here, and prices already less than usual.

Corsets and How to Fit Them, by Madame Milne.

The corset should be tightened at two different times; first, adjust the lower part of the corset over the abdomen, producing the effect of a belt, contributing effectively to the support of the organs. Second, tighten the upper part of the corset across the bust.

Put the corset on the figure and lace it very loosely. After the corset is hooked, from the bottom, preferably, pull it down over the abdomen, but not too far down, as this will displace the waist line. A movement of the shoulders from right to left, or left to right, will adjust the undergarments in such a manner as to give perfect ease and freedom. Then tighten the lower part of the corset at the back, pulling the laces upward as far as the waist line. This will result in the organs of the abdomen being held up and in, hygienically and comfortably. Then close the waist line to almost the desired tightness, after which tighten the upper part from the waist line gradually to top, allowing the necessary freedom, and, lastly, close the waist line comfortably snug. In this way the abdomen is reduced and held in by reason of the organs being in the correct position; also, the bust from the waist line upward is loose enough to give perfect freedom to the lungs and heart, the action of respiration doing the necessary work.

The new "Bon Ton" earn our recommendation because they are extraordinarily well adapted to the vogue of the day, besides being hygienic and comfortable.

"FASSO."

Several numbers of the "Bon Ton" at $5.00 to $9.00 will compare favorably in every respect with imported corsets at $7.50 to $12.

Samples at $2.80 and $3.80.

Certain models favored by Madame Milne are being demonstrated and fitted by her. The prices asked—$2.80 and $3.80 instead of $4 and $5—are made with a view of quickly introducing these new models to the greatest possible numbers.

Best at $1.00 and $3.00.

Among the best of the newly long Corsets at modest prices are certain numbers of the "Royal Worcester." These corsets are guaranteed to give full satisfaction if the visitor will accept the number recommended to her by Madame Milne, whose theory is that even the most expensive of corsets will prove unsatisfactory if the correct type is not worn. The question is: What is your type? The advice of Madame Milne will prove of life-lasting value.

Wear Merode Union Suits.
